RE: United States of America v. Cameron Wilkerson
Criminal Action 1:07-MJ-1157

Competency to stand trial

Dear Mr. Saviello:

Mr. Cameron Wilkerson, the defendant in the above-referenced criminal case, was evaluated pursuant to your request for a psychiatric evaluation. A copy of this report is being sent only to you. This report will discuss the defendant's competency to stand trial.

Mr. Wilkerson is presently incarcerated in the South Fulton Municipal Regional Jail on charges of bank robbery, which allegedly occurred on October 2, 2007 (1:07-MJ-1157).

Sources of information:

Interview of Mr. Wilkerson, conducted by Matthew W. Norman, M.D., at South Fulton Municipal Regional Jail on November 5, 2007, for approximately one hour and ten minutes.

Review of the defendant's South Fulton Municipal Regional Jail medical records as of November 5, 2007.

Copy of the court order authorizing a jail contact visit with the defendant dated October 26, 2007.

Copy of the criminal complaint 1:07-MJ-1157 dated October 4, 2007.

Copy of the affidavit of Ray E. Johnson in support of criminal complaint 1:07-MJ-1157.

RE: Cameron WilkersonNotification of rights:

At the outset of the evaluation, I read to Mr. Wilkerson the standard Psychiatric Associates of Atlanta Advisory Notice. This notice included informing him of the purpose of the evaluation, that his mental condition would be evaluated, that the evaluation was not confidential, that anything he told me I might be asked to testify about in court, and that a copy of this report would be sent to you and only you. I told him that he had the right to not answer questions about his case, his mental condition, or his actions at the time of the alleged offense. Mr. Wilkerson agreed to proceed with the evaluation and signed the Advisory Notice. Mr. Wilkerson also signed a release authorizing review of his jail medical records.

Evaluation for competency to stand trial:Awareness of charges

Mr. Wilkerson knew charges being made against him. He could state that he was charged with "robbery." He was unable or unwilling to narrate the circumstances which gave rise to the charges and the circumstances under which he was arrested, such as where he was, whom he was with, and what he was doing.

Awareness of possible consequences

Mr. Wilkerson was aware of possible pleas and indicated that, if convicted, he could get a prison sentence. He had a basic understanding of the basic pleas. He stated guilty means "you're admitting to the acts stated on the report," and not guilty means "you're innocent." Mr. Wilkerson had an inadequate understanding of plea bargaining. Although he stated that a plea bargain was "if you do certain things now then you can get a deal," he was unable to appreciate that he would have to plead guilty in a plea bargain. When asked further questions about plea bargaining, he replied that he "just wanted to talk with [his] attorney."

Mr. Wilkerson showed an inadequate understanding of the roles of the participants at a trial, and he was tangential and disorganized in his thoughts. He stated the job of the defense attorney was to "use as much legal action to try to prove you're not guilty." When asked what the role (or job) of the prosecutor was, he replied that "isn't they the one against you... try and state... just try and speak with the judge to see... to see the prosecutor to find something they did wrong... to try and help the person." A witness is supposed to "be a person... like a church witness." He then laughed inappropriately. A jury "listens to both sides of the story." A judge "listens to both parties." When asked the role of the defendant at a trial, he responded with "am I the defendant? If I... let my lawyer talk for me."

Ability to assist his attorney

Mr. Wilkerson said he thought he could work with his attorney. He knew his attorney's first name.

RE: Cameron Wilkerson

He stated that he felt he had been able to communicate with him. He was unable or unwilling to discuss aspects of the case, such as what he was doing at the time of the alleged offense. And, there was evidence of a thought disorder, specifically paranoid delusional thinking, which interfered with his ability to relate to me. He was paranoid about the jail staff, his sister, his girlfriend, and this examiner. While asking his history of substance use, he became very paranoid. He stated, "I see what you are doing." He became quite guarded in answering information. When the examination was re-explained to him. He said, "No... I know what you are doing." He became increasingly agitated. The interview was nearly stopped by the examiner. He then calmed down, was willing to continue, but refused to answer many other questions. He also started to tell the examiner what to write down.

Brief History:

Personal History: Mr. Wilkerson was born in the Atlanta area on September 26, 1988. He has lived in the Atlanta area all of his life. He was unwilling to answer many questions about his background. He repeatedly asked how those questions were pertinent to a psychiatric evaluation. He said he attended Atlanta Public High Schools. He did not graduate. He said he attended Morrow High School and also went to "Saturday school" at Grady High School. Mr. Wilkerson is single. He denied having any children.

Psychiatric History: Mr. Wilkerson denied receiving previous psychiatric treatment prior to his incarceration at South Fulton Municipal Regional Jail. However, his medical records from the jail revealed that his emergency contact, Ms. Shantae McKinnon, reported him receiving previous psychiatric treatment at both Grady Memorial Hospital and Georgia Regional Hospital at Atlanta. His treatment history from the jail is summarized below. He denied current suicidal thoughts. He denied any current thoughts of wanting to hurt anyone else.

Substance use history: Mr. Wilkerson denied a history of substance use. He denied using alcohol, cocaine, marijuana, or other illicit drugs. He became very defensive during this portion of the interview.

Medical History: Mr. Wilkerson denied any medical problems. He denied a history of medical hospitalizations or surgeries. He denied a history of head injuries, seizures, or loss of consciousness. He denied any known allergies to medications. He reported taking medications at the jail but did not recall the name or the dosages.

Pertinent data from other sources:

South Fulton Municipal Regional Jail medical records: Mr. Wilkerson was first seen by the medical staff at the jail on October 26, 2007. At that time, the personnel noted that he was "extremely paranoid, agitated, irrational thoughts and loose associations. Moods cycling very quickly. Speech understandable but pressured at times." He presented with "tissue in his ears." Dr. Graham wrote that he was "psychotic and paranoid. He would benefit from inpatient stabilization." On October 31,

RE: Cameron Wilkerson

2007, he was "still aggressive [and] still with toilet paper in both ears to 'keep out all the chatter.' Inmate very paranoid talking about cameras in the room and all the nurses being 'undercover.'" The following day, he spoke about "his sister and girlfriend being informants." He was started on Risperdal (an anti-psychotic and mood-stabilizing medication) two milligrams twice per day. He was being compliant with his medications.

Formal mental status examination:

Mr. Wilkerson is a 19-year-old male who was oriented to person, place and time. He was dressed in an orange jail uniform. He was poorly groomed. He was unshaven. His hair was unkempt. He was very guarded and distant with this examiner throughout the examination. He made fair eye contact. He displayed no abnormal involuntary movements. He displayed no psychomotor retardation or agitation. His speech was normal in rate, volume, and tone. He described his mood as "okay." His affect was clearly constricted in range but was appropriate to content. Thought processes were tangential and loose.

Mr. Wilkerson was paranoid. He denied a history of auditory hallucinations but there were a few brief behavioral pieces of evidence of auditory hallucinations (such as get distracted and thought blocking). He denied any compulsions and obsessions. He also denied any present suicidal or homicidal thoughts.

Mr. Wilkerson was fairly concrete in his interpretations of two Aesop's fables. When told the fable of the grasshopper and the ants, he stated that the "moral is trying to get food to support their family and help their family out so the queen won't be mad." When told the story of the tortoise and the hare, he said that the moral was "don't underestimate your opponent." He correctly identified similarities between common objects. He knew the capitals of Georgia, the United States, and England. He did not know the capital of France. He knew the current president and four recent past presidents. When asked what he would do in certain situations, he showed odd judgement. When asked what he would do if he found a stamped, addressed envelope on the street, he replied that "if it's not a thing." When asked what he would do if he was in a movie theater and a fire broke out, he replied that he "wouldn't be there." I estimate his intelligence to be in the average range based on his vocabulary and skills.

Opinion regarding competency to stand trial:

At the time of the evaluation, Mr. Wilkerson showed adequate verbal skills and was aware of the charges against him. He was unable or unwilling to provide an account of his actions with respect to the offenses charged. He had an insufficient understanding of plea bargaining and court procedure. And, there was evidence of a thought disorder, specifically paranoid delusional thinking, which significantly interfered with his ability to relate to me. The behavior that Mr. Wilkerson exhibited during this evaluation was consistent with the observations noted by his current counsel of record.

In my opinion, at the time of the evaluation, Mr. Wilkerson was not competent to stand trial. The defendant appears to be in need of inpatient psychiatric hospitalization.
